Home Run by McAvoy in Ninth Only Tally Little Macks Score on George Dauss

BY JIM NASIUM

Mr. Mack's latest model in the art of pastiming had its winning streak busted yesterday when it met its first defeat of the season. With but two more games to go to equal the feat of the old Famous Cincinnati Red Stockings by finishing the season without having met a defeat, they crashed headlong into Ty Cobb and the Detroit ball club yesterday after noon and tumbled down to a 9 to 1 licking.

George Dauss and "Doney" Bush were the principal culprits in the perpetration of this dastardly outrage. George pitched such slathered classic ball that he beat his totalitarian opponent single handed until Jim McAvoy unceremoniously and without warning thumped one into the left field bleachers for a home run after two were out in the ninth, and "Doney" personally conducted three of their six tallies over the plate and compiled a perfect batting average with four safe blows and one hit by pitcher out of five trips to the plate, aiding materially in the scoring of a fourth tally by driving it around to third with one of his base hits.

In our frenzied efforts to protect the untarnished record of our young and growing ball club we shot three pitchers at the enemy and quietly slipped a couple of regulars in as pinch hitters, but it availed us naught.

Naylor opened the hostilities for us on the pitching peak, and they batted him for four blows, a sacrifice fly and a hit-by-pitcher that yielded two runs in three innings. Sox Seibold then tried his hand at the job, and Sox was considerably better for two periods and then considerably worse for the morrow. He didn't allow a man to reach first in his first period of duty and in the next he was relieved for seven blows and three passes in his next two rounds, yielding four runs. Danny Keefe duly bowed in the two final periods and escaped unscathed.

Bush amassed the first run in the opening period when Naylor hit him to start the game and he went to second on Vitt's out at first. Cobb then beat out a hunt that nobody even took the trouble to field, and Veach scored Bush with a base hit to center. Bush also scored the second alien tally in the third when he beat out a hunt, raced to third on Vitt's base hit to right, and scored on Cobb's sacrifice fly to Naylor.

Bush also lugged in their third run. He opened the sixth with a base hit and Vitt walked. Bush took third when Cobb forced Vitt at second, and then Ty stole second. Veach sent a single to left field that scored Bush, but when Cobb also tried to catch the Athletic infield asleep and scored from second he was potted at the plate. Veach took second on the play and scored on Heilmann's single to center.

Their first two tallies were scored in the seventh on a single by Yelle, Dauss' sacrifice, Bush's third base hit, a pass to Vitt and Cobb's single to left.

Our only run came in when McAvoy busted a home run into the bleachers after two had perished in the ninth. Sharman, leading hitter of the Texas League during the past busted terms made a near home run in the sixth, but opened this period by thumping one so far over Cobb's head that he went down to the score board, but he locked the fleetness of foot to convert this into a home run and was out at the plate when Bush made a perfect relay to Cobb's throw to Yelle.

The two teams will play a double-header this afternoon, Monday's game being moved up, and local American League season this afternoon instead of Monday.

BROWNS SURPRISE RED SOX

BOSTON, Sept. 28.—Boston defeated Cleveland 2 to 1 by St. Louis today on a rain-soaked diamond. The home team's batting streak kept the attendance down to the smallest that has been seen here this season. Cleveland was unable to get a hit off Boston pitchers, the home runs. Manager Fielder Jones was ejected and forfeited baseball declared in favor of Boston.

ANOTHER TITLE FOR JIM BARNES

Whitemarsh Golfer Captured Open Golf Crown of City With Score of 306

Played Consistent Game During Two Days—Hoffner Finished Second and Reid Third

Playing a game that was worthy of his reputation, James M. Barnes, of the Whitemarsh Valley Country Club, won the open golf championship of Philadelphia at the Merion Cricket Club course yesterday with a score of 306 strokes for the seventy-two holes. He won by the comfortable margin of five strokes from Charles H. Hoffner, of the Philadelphia Country Club, who in turn was two strokes ahead of Wilfred Reid, of Wilmington. Others who got in the money were Tom McNamara, of Taplow, with 317; Freddie McLeod, of Columbia, with 319, and Pat Doyle, of Southview, with 320. McLeod also won the special prize of $10 for the best round during the tournament, with a 73 on the afternoon of the first day.

There can be no disputing the fact that the championship went to the best golfer in the tournament, and the best in the country, for that matter. On the face of it there is nothing remarkable about the 306 made by Barnes, but when the difficulties of the Merion course are considered the feat of playing every round under eighty was really a fine performance. In the first round on Thursday Barnes came perilously near getting by with a fine remarkable finish enabled him to beat this mark by one stroke. Although he had one or two bad holes in the afternoon, and especially the one where he took an eight, he turned in a score of 76. Yesterday morning he had another 76 and finished up the day with a 74 in the afternoon.

Yesterday morning the second hole was again Barnes's bête noir, which he by taking four putts, it cost him a seven. Hoffner duplicated the feat on the same hole and got his three on the ninth and Reid got his four on the eighth. Barnes's putting was his undoing on the seventh, however, he scored a brilliant three, followed up with a four on the eighth and got his three on the ninth and was off to a good start. He was in the rough on the tee shot on the tenth hole, the first and same home in a steady 38. He got a 76 for the round. In the afternoon he started badly by missing the tee and taking a six for the first hole, but for once in a way, the jink was the kind of eight which helped rather than hurt and got a par five. He got a four on the fourth hole, but he took fives on the next three and was again even fives for the first nine. On the seventh hole, where he got his par three, while on the eighth he had topped his drive and with his second shot he overshot the pit at the back of the green. He chipped back to the green and ran down a longish putt for a four. He got another four on the ninth and was 40 to the turn. On the tenth he had a beautiful drive and followed it up with a fine second to the green which, however, left him a long putt. This he ran down for a bird three. After the seventh hole, where he was on the green with a screamer, but his approach was a trifle short, he got a four and was in good enough anyhow. On the thirteenth, the short hole, he was on the green very nearly ran down his first putt for a three.

Although Charlie Hoffner finished up the day's play in second place, he and Barnes and Clarence Reid, who finished third, had a fine time of capturing the championship by the skin of their teeth. Hoffner was one over 80 going out and was the same over 80 coming in, making a total of 160. He played fine golf in the final round and had a good chance to win when he had the best round of the day and should have finished ahead of Barnes instead of being behind Barnes instead of five.

Hoffner was paired with Wilfred Reid and a very interesting struggle took place between them for second place. Reid got a 79 in the morning and 81 in the afternoon, but dropped below the money. Steady, reliable Tom McNamara thoroughly deserved third money. He fell off in his play in the afternoon, but he came in with a 81 strokes, and it was the only round on the card. Barnes's 306 was the best.
