SOX WIN TWO, BUT INDIANS' VICTORIES PROLONG AMERICAN LEAGUE RACE

CARL MAYS TWICE PITCHES TO VICTORY

Mackmen So Easy in First Game Boston Hurler Continues on Mound

Misplays Give Perry Bad Start and Athletics Are Defeated in Afterpiece 4-1

Special to The Inquirer.

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—Connie Mack's Athletics proved no obstacle in the path of the Red Sox in a double-header this afternoon before one of the largest crowds of the season at Fenway Park, but although they trounced the Macks, 12-0 in one game and 4-1 in the other, the Sox are still outside the championship because of Cleveland's victory today in both ends of a bargain set with Detroit.

The Bostons behind Carl Mays in both games broke loose with some of the hitting, rolling up an 8 to 0 lead against Walter Leverett in the first game, mainly because of an unremarkable error by Dykes at second base, got away to a good start in the Scott Perry, who was going along in fine style and who would have been a hard man for the leaders to beat had he had good support.

The Macks did not have any chance at all in the first game, but should have had one run, at least, when Oldring opened the eighth inning with a triple, only to remain on third while the next three batters went out. In the second game all the Sox runs were in the box by Acosta and a single by Gardner with the bases filled by the mentality of that afternoon.

In the first game the Athletics secured eight scattered hits and made five in the afternoon. All this hitting was done against the flinging of Carl Mays, who had such an easy time in the opener that he remained in the points and went through the second game without a hitch. That Mays won so easily in the first game was due to the start he got because of the Macks' fielding miscues.

The Boston's first inning lead of three runs came on passes to Hooper and Shean by Johnson, and a two-base wallop by Barrow, who scored Hooper. Then following a sacrifice by Adam Strunk, his ticket, hits by Schang and Mays and a throw to the plate by Dykes and a muff at the home station by McAvoy netted the Red Sox three more scores in the second. In the third, with Jamieson working, a pass to McInnis, Scott's single, a bad throw by Dugan, another by Jamieson and a double by Mays added three additional points to the score, giving the Sox a 8-0 lead.

Patches of three hits in the sixth and seventh innings added two more for Boston before the game ended.

In the second game the Athletics started well back of Perry, but scored in the third when the home club failed to cover around on a pass to Schang, Mays' fourth hit of the day, a ticket to Hooper, Shean's hit, an out on Dyke's slump on an easy chance from McInnis, Acosta's double and Gardner's single to the fourth saved the Macks from a double blank, for the day, this run being retrieved by the Sox in the fifth on a pass to Hooper and Strunk's centre field triple.

REID AND DOYLE GOLF WINNERS

Divide First and Second Prize in the Open Championship on Noble Links

On Account of Storm on First Day Medal Play Is Cut to 36 Holes

Just when everybody was congratulating Paul Dunn, Philadelphia Dual professional, on having won the open championship of the Golf Association of Philadelphia at Huntingdon Valley yesterday, he went to virtual defeat at the hands and upset the dope by equaling Doyle's score.

Both men had a score of 159 for the three holes, and they thoroughly deserved the success for they played very fine golf. They divided first and second money, which totaled out at $170 apiece. Clarence Hackney, of Atlantic City, took third money, $70, with a score of 151; Fred McLeod, of Columbia, took fourth money, $40, with a score of 152, and Emmett Francis, of York, and James Harrison, of Wheatley Hills, divided 6th and sixth money with scores of 153 apiece.

After Thursday's fiasco the Executive Committee of the association decided to start the tournament all over again and play 36 holes yesterday and 36 today, but yesterday morning the tournament was reduced to 36 holes again. The reason for the change was that Paul Dunn, who is a big draw, was unable to get at their home clubs, and consequently he was very inconvenient for them to be away.

Several of the professionals said that they would be unable to compete on the second day, and so the committee decided to put it to a vote of the players, who almost unanimously voted in favor of opening the tournament at 36 holes. This gave general satisfaction to all, although it was certainly quite a tough for the leaders in the first day's play.

Wilfred Reid, for instance, would never be tournament, for he had a score of 194 on Thursday, and yesterday he had another of 197, giving him a total of 311 for the four rounds. And he had played two fine rounds, and committee thought that he certainly should receive some sort of recognition of it and he was awarded a special prize of $50. Decision, who tied with Reid on the first day, also received a prize in recognition of his feat. The best score of the day for eighteen holes was made yesterday by James Crossen, of Wheaton Hills. He turned in a score of 72, which is exactly par for the course. He played par golf on all but the first, where he was one over, and the fifteenth, where he was one under, holes.

In the afternoon quite a gallery followed him and he was a trifle nervous and in consequence he did not get as good a score as he should have been low man for the afternoon round.

Dunn, who was playing over his own course, started off in great style and was one under, holes.

In the morning Reid had shot fine golf and had turned in a score of 76, and he was playing in the pink of condition
