

Sigel Captures Phila. Open by 12 Strokes

By MAYER BRANDSCHAIN
With the benefit of a record-equaling score of 64 on his morning round, Jay Sigel won the Philadelphia Open golf championship by a whopping 12 strokes yesterday at Biederman Golf Club.

There were 45 amateurs and 15 pros in the field, but the 31-year-old Ansonia star, holder of the Pennsylvania Amateur and the Pennsylvania Open titles as well, put them all away with the morning round. In tying the record held by Ben Crenshaw and Bob Krum, Sigel had seven birdies and one bogey. He added two birdies and an eagle in his one-under-71 on the afternoon round. "I didn't think a 64 was possible on this course with its lightning fast green. I could conceive of a round like this on a course with soft greens where it is possible to make eagles on the par fives," Sigel said. Nevertheless, Sigel did make an eagle 3 on the 63-yard sixth with a drive into rough, a 4-iron to the green and a 12-foot putt. His putting log was 14-15-29 in the morning and 15-15-29 in the afternoon.

He single-putted seven greens in the morning from 12 feet to 25 and single-putted seven more in the afternoon from two feet to 25. He defeated his Pennsylvania Open title rival Wayneborough's Ted McKenite, former Philadelphia Open champion and twice a runner-up, finished second at 75-74-149 and was the first pro prize of $400. The second prize of $245 each went to John Poole, West Chester pro who birdied four holes, and Mike Niles, Philadelphia Country, each tied at 149. Dick Hendrickson, former holder of the title from Wedwood, and Bob Gleason, Edgemont, tied at 151 and collected $287 apiece.

Co-medalist Janice Palmer and Charlotte Balick met with adversity and a close challenge respectively in the first round of the 70th women's Philadelphia amateur golf championship yesterday at Biederman Golf Club. Sally Carley, who had scored five strokes higher than her opponent in Monday's qualifying round, defeated Palmer by 1 up after the match was even at the end of 15 holes.

Balick, runner-up for the title last year, overcame Donna Kimes, 1 up, after trailing 1-down at the end of four holes. Defending champion Ann Laughlin won by 4 and 3 over Lisa Dymowski and now will be confronted in the quarter-finals by Riverton clubmate Dotie Porter, a six-time champion.
