A record five-under-par 35-30-65 on the challenging Philmont North Course yesterday morning set Woodcrest pro Tim DeBaufre on the trail to the 80th Philadelphia Open golf championship despite a wobbly afternoon round. He finished with 41-35-76 for a 36-hole 141.

Philmont pro Buzz Garvin, the Philadelphia Section PGA president, said the previous competitive record for the North Course was 66 by touring pro Art Wall in the 1966 U. S. Open qualifying round. Par for the 6,360-yard course with sloping, treelined fairways is 35-35—70.

An eagle 2 on the 445-yard 16th, with a drive down the middle and a 177-yard 5-iron shot that bounced three feet into the cup, made possible the record score and the $485 first-place reward for DeBaufre.

He birdied four other holes — the third in 3 from 20 feet after a 9-iron, the 12th in 4 from 3 feet, the 13th in 3 from the same distance (with sand wedges paving the way) and the 18th in 3 from 25 feet following a wedge. The 383-yard second produced his only bogey, after a drive among trees.

DeBaufre's competitive day ran from 8:06 a.m. to 3:45 p.m. Then he endured a three-hour wait for the last to complete the 12-hour tournament. Notwithstanding an afternoon session with "nerves" and six missed putts from two feet, DeBaufre's margin held up by two strokes over Huntingdon Valley's Jack Connelly.

DeBaufre, 37, succeeds Pennsylvania amateur titlist Jay Sigel, who had horrendous experiences with trees on the 36th in winding up with 73-80-153.
