SAUCON'S MATTARE SECURES 113TH #GAOPEN

GLADWYNE, Pa.—Matt Mattare remained calm at every point of crisis in the Open Championship's final round. A near disaster on No. 16 included.

Entering Round 2 with a four-shot advantage, and fresh off a Philadelphia Country Club (par 71, 6,920 yards) course-record of 8-under-par 63, Mattare kept the field at arm's length throughout to register a two-shot victory. Mattare, an amateur, finished the 36 holes of the event's 113th edition with a 138 total. He posted a second-round 4-over 75.

Brian Bergstol, Shawnee Country Club's director of instruction, and Tony Perla, an assistant professional from Philadelphia Cricket Club, tied for second place as well as low-pro honors at 2 under. Only four players broke par for the 36 holes.

"It certainly wasn't as easy as yesterday," said Mattare, 31, of Jersey City, N.J. "It feels great to get it over the finish line. I feel like my résumé has a bunch of runner-ups and Top 5s and not enough of the big hardware. It feels great to bring this one home."

Mattare's top prior Open finish was a tie for third in 2011 and 2016.

He did win the Association's Middle-Amateur Championship last spring at Waynesborough Country Club in a three-man playoff.

"This is definitely the biggest win I've had," Mattare added.

This year's Open was the first with a revamped format, which included the expansion of the field to 130-plus players (up from 78) and administration of the tournament over two days instead of one. A total of 65 players made the cut (the cut was the low 60 players and ties) — 38 amateurs and 27 professionals.

Mattare opened his title march in solid, yet conservative, fashion with nine straight pars. He either found the putting surface or the fringe on every front-nine hole. At one point, standing on No. 5 (par 3, 153 yards) he held a six-shot advantage. Mattare headed to the back nine eventually five strokes clear.

That's when a little trouble started to brew. On Nos. 10 (par 4, 435 yards) and 11 (par 3, 192 yards), he missed both greens with resulting bogeys. On the former, his tee ball found the left rough and his subsequent approach missed right. On 11, his 5-iron landed eight feet left of the flagstick but bounced over the green. He missed his four-foot par try.

"The pins were a little tougher and the greens dried out a little bit," said Mattare of the course conditions. "I wasn't hitting bad shots. It was set up tough and the course fought back a little bit. I bogeyed Nos. 10 and 11. I didn't hit bad shots. They just kind of bounced over the green. And I didn't get up-and-down."

Mattare found the greenside bunker on No. 15 (par 3, 221 yards) for another over-par score and then on No. 16 (par 4, 403 yards) almost watched his monster lead disappear.

He ripped a perfect drive and was left with an 85-yard wedge shot.

"The only time I felt like I hit a really bad shot was on No. 16 when I laid the sod over [the second shot]," said Mattare. "It's such a ticklish shot down the hill, hitting a three-quarter lob wedge off a downhill lie to a pin where you have the size of a coffee table to land it in."

Mattare's next shot from 38 yards ran through the green, leaving him a 35-foot par effort. His bogey putt was six feet.

"That was the only putt I made outside three feet. Yesterday I had 13 one putts, today I had one. It was a very timely one putt. We got through that and here we are."

Notes

The inaugural Open Championship featured a field of 23 players, three of which were amateurs. The entry fee was $5. Jack Campbell of Huntingdon Valley Country Club won the event and collected the then $90 purse. The format changed to match play a year later and reverted back to a 36-hole, one day stroke play event in 1909. Amateurs have won the last nine editions.

R. Jay Sigel holds the most Open titles at six. He won all those as an amateur.

The Golf Association of Philadelphia serves as the sole administrator of the Open Championship. It became a two-day, 36-hole tournament in 2017.
